Aloe Vera

The extract of the Aloe Vera plant is used in cosmetics for its regenerative effects. Polysaccharides contained in the extract ensure adequate hydration of cells. Active ingredients of the extract stimulate fibroblasts (primary cells of connecting tissue spread in different parts of the human body) and thereby resulting in accelerated cellular renewal and help to reduce the reproduction of bacteria.

Allantoin

This active substance supports tissue renewal and is widely used in cosmetology and medicine due to its valuable properties, especially for its significant regenerative and soothing effects. Allantoin acts positively during healing processes by supporting cell division.

Chelidonium Majus

This extract is also known as celandine. It contains active isoquinoline-type alkaloids which is externally applied for microbial eczema, to treat non-healing purulent wounds, venous ulcers and warts. It also helps with occurring skin fungus.

Instructions for use: apply a small quantity to the skin and leave to dry freely.
