

Lactoferrin is a multifunctional protein from a transferrin family that naturally occurs in human body, where it acts as one of the leading component of organism's immune system. Until today there has been no resistance to Lactoferrin, which means that is continuously effective. It is presented in the human body in exocrine secretions such as milk, saliva, tears, bile, but also in blood plasma and neutrophils. The highest concentration of lactoferrin is present in the first milk after birth of mammals.

Lactoferrin has broad activity and has a positive effect on human body. Its main function is to bind and maintain constant and uniform level of iron in the body. At the same time it has high antimicrobial, antibacterial, antiviral, antifungal and antioxidant properties, it also acts against parasites, cancer-cells and protects against harmful radiation.

Lactoferrin used in ESSENS products is obtained by special technology from fresh bovine milk. Therefore, we can guarantee the highest possible quality.
